- The Sporades are a group of islands on the prefecture of Magnesia and are comprised by the islands of Skopelos, Skiathos, Alonnisos and Skyros.

Skopelos is the second biggest island of the Sporades with a population of 6000 residents, an extent of ground of 96 square klms and a length of beaches of 68 klms. The ground is mountainous and around three quarters of the ground are covered by pine trees.

Skopelos is the greenest island in Greece, “the green and blue island” as formally declared by the international organization of Biopolitics. It is a diamond that adorns the Aegean with an ideal environment where the green pines and dense forests blend with the light blue sea and sky creating a picture of incomparable natural beauty. Apart from pine trees there is also a rich flora as a great number of rare plants adorn the rich nature. The main road network of Skopelos is a distance of 35 klms. It stretches from the Hora to the port of Glossa (Loutraki). To enjoy all the beautiful sights of Skopelos it is helpful to have the use of a car or motorbike. If you don't have one of your own you can rent a vehicle on the island or use the local bus or taxi service.

The roads are in good condition and the ride through the forests is particularly enchanting. Nature has endowed the island with some characteristics that are hard to find elsewhere. The island is touristically developed and this offers to the visitor the ideal solution for holidays, as it is suited to nature lovers, adventure lovers but also to those who just want to have fun and enjoy nightlife.

The crystal clear waters, the rich vegetation, the picturesque villages, nightlife, the taverns by the sea, the various shops that sell local art, the local flavours, the paths that are ideal for walking, the many graphical creeks that are ideal for sailing, the various beaches, are only a few of the reasons why you will fall in love with Skopelos.

Entertainment

Bars that play all types of music from rock to greek music are built by the sea or on slopes. Tavernas and ouzeri can be found in the narrow streets or by the sea. Cafes, internet cafes, clubs with live greek music make entertainment in Skopelos exciting and unique.

Transportation

The main road network of Skopelos is a distance of 35 klms. It stretches from the Hora to the port of Glossa (Loutraki). The local busses stop at most beaches and travel often, especially during the summer. There are also a lot of taxis. The roads are in good condition and the ride through the forests is particularly enchanting.

- Skopelos has been inhabited since the prehistoric era. The island's ancient name was Peparithos. It was named after Peparithos, one of the two sons of Dionysos and Ariadne, and grandson of the legendary king of Crete, Minoas.

The first inhabitants of the island were Cretans who were led there by Stafylos, Dionyso's second son, around 1600 BC. Stafylos became the first king of Peparithos. In 1936 in the bay of Stafylos, which was named after him, archaeologists found the royal tomb in which they also found golden jewellery, ceramic vessels, as well as his sword with the golden handle.

From 800 to 750 BC. the island was occupied by the Halkideis who had created three colonies: Peparithos which is the present Hora, Panormos located where the Panormos bay is located today and Selinounta which is called Loutraki today.

Next, the island was under the control of the Athenians, later of the Macedonians and in 146 BC of the Romans , like the whole Greece.

The name Skopelos is first mentioned in the 2nd century and has been used ever since. The name is mainly due to the fact that in the north coasts there are a lot of reefs (Skopelos in Greek).

Until 1453 Skopelos had been part of the Byzantine empire. From 1453 it was under the Venetians' control, after a decision taken by the inhabitants themselves.

In 1538 the Turks led by Pirate Barbarosa occupy the island, plunder it and kill the inhabitants. During the 17th century the island was depopulated for many decades, and was again inhabited in the early 18th century mainly by Thessalians and Macedonians, and Skopelos became alive again.

In 1821 Skopelos was among the first to join the Greek revolution and helped significantly by supplying its naval force. In 1830 Skopelos became part of the newly created Greek state.

There are several sights on the island that can impress the visitor. Some of them are the following:

- The numerous churches, chapels and monasteries which are more than 365. The most famous monasteries are those of Evangelistria, Prodromou, Metamorfosis tou Sotira and Santa Barbara.
- The picturesque chapel of Agios Ioannis in Kastri. It is located in the north side of the island on the peak of an imposing rock that stands in the sea. To reach the chapel you should climb the one hundred stairs carved on the rock. Meryl Streep climbed those stairs in the well-known movie "Mamma Mia".
- The ancient cities of: Peparithos in Skopelos town, Panormos near Panormos bay, Selinounta and Roman baths in Loutraki. The ruins of these ancient cities can still be seen today.
- The famous Sentoukia which are ancient tombs carved in the mountain Karya.
- Episkopi, a Venetian castle built around 1200 A.D. , intended for the Bishop of Skopelos but it remained unfinished because the island was occupied by the Turks.

- Asklipeio is an ancient temple (4th century B.C.). Its ruins can still be seen today.
- The Venetian castle over the town of Skopelos.
- The house of the well-known writer Pavlos Nirvanas, which is now a museum.
- The folk museum of Skopelos where you can see traditional outfits and other exhibits that highlight the cultural heritage of the place.

SETTLEMENTS

Skopelos (Hora). It is the capital town which is located in the northeast part of the island. The cobblestone alleys, the houses that are built amphitheatrically next to each other with their tiled roofs, the verandas that are full of flowers, and the numerous little churches that are scattered in the narrow alleys are a few of the main characteristics of Hora.

Agnontas. It is a little coastal area with fish taverns and a beautiful beach.

Panormos. It is a small coastal settlement with many restaurants, fish taverns and a big beautiful beach.

Neo Klima (Elios). It is an area by the sea full of pine trees. The picturesque port with the organized marina can that accommodate yachts, the newly -built houses and the wonderful beach with different shades of natural beauty are some of the characteristics of the settlement.

Old Klima, one of the traditional villages of the island. Its main characteristic is the old stone houses that are built amphitheatrically, as well as the picturesque narrow cobblestone alleys.

Glossa is the second biggest village after Hora and it is built on the slope of the mountain, offering a wonderful view to the Aegean Sea. Its main features are the cobblestone streets and the houses with the tiled roofs and the small wooden balconies.

Loutraki, which serves as a port for Glossa. It is located by the sea and has a beautiful beach which is of archaeological interest as there are ruins of the Romans baths as well as ruins of the ancient city of Selinounta.
